

DANIEL LEE WHITE | FREELANCE DIRECTOR

CURRICULUM VITAE - 2022

ARTIST STATEMENT

As an artist working in theatre, my primary focus is on building a pragmatic and accessible approach to comedy and farce. Since childhood, I have been passionate about comedy in all its forms. Professionally, I find it inspiring and powerful to conceive, write, and direct work that makes others laugh and allows the audience to temporarily escape from their everyday concerns. I have great respect for drama, but I find comedy and farce to be more personally challenging and rewarding. I have developed a strong understanding of comedic timing and build work that speaks to various senses of humor.

I believe that theatre should be accessible to all. Shakespeare wrote plays filled with lust, blood, comedy, and romance in a way that enraptured the entire audience--from royalty to the groundlings. At the time, his productions were competing with brothels and bear fights. Today we have different forms of entertainment competing with the experience of sitting in a theatre and being immersed in a story for an entire performance, but my goal remains the same--directing productions that are relatable and accessible to anyone and that does not exclude people from being entertained and inspired.

CRITICAL ACCLAIM/QUOTES

2019, Boeing, Boeing, Newport Playhouse, Newport, RI - Broadway World
"Director White keeps that fun and entertainment value ratcheted up, going for quick pace and big, broad comedy. ...White builds the momentum and energy steadily over the run time, heading towards the inevitable and well-staged climactic craziness. White's cast is clearly having fun with that craziness that they're asked to create onstage."

2019, Boeing, Boeing, Newport Playhouse, Newport, RI - Tony's Corner
"Director Daniel Lee White casts six comic performers in these roles and gives them the clever shtick to keep the audience laughing."

2018, The No Tell Motel, Newport Playhouse, Newport, RI - Tony's Corner
"Director Daniel Lee White casts these four comic roles beautifully and gives them each their moment to shine and some clever shtick to perform to keep the audience laughing all night long."

"...at times funny, frightening, touching or simply surreal."

2011, Cost of the Living: A Zom Rom Com - Film Threat

"The opening minutes are incredible..."

EDUCATOR STATEMENT

I have extensive experience in theatrical education and thrive at collaborating with my students to build work that embodies their cultures, identities, politics, voices, and experiences, and brings them a deep sense of pride. From performing arts high schools and improvisational comedy troupes to after-school programming and social awareness performances, my work is deeply rooted in my passion for making theatre accessible for all. My students learn the foundation of the theatrical arts, in both theory and practice. I have led them in producing both large-scale productions and more individual projects. These experiences have opened my eyes to new ways of making my work accessible to more diverse audiences. Finally, in seeking new experiences for my students, I have developed strong partnerships with surrounding theatre communities.
